What will I learn on this course?

- 1) Comparison between coaching and counselling and other roles
- 2) The meaning and importance of active listening
- 3) The importance of self-awareness, reflection and feedback
- 4) The impact of boundaries and judgments on safety when listening

Counselling courses include elements of self-awareness, personal growth and development, this will involve self-reflection and sharing of possibly uncomfortable situations undertaken within the confines of the classroom with boundaries and rules set by learners. You will also be expected to give feedback to peers. Due to the nature of the course all students are required to sign a confidentiality agreement at induction.

Although personal counselling is not a requirement at this level it is highly recommended and maybe specifically suggested to you if the tutor thinks it will enhance your support and development. Group and triad sessions are not a replacement for this.

Is this course suitable for me?

This course is designed to give you an insight into where you may like to develop your studies further and gives you the opportunity to ask the tutor any questions you may have regarding the progression courses.

Is there anything I need to know about the course?

Learners will be expected to attend all sessions and be prepared to complete 2 written pieces of work - these need to be completed on a computer, (cpcab.co.uk) have an excellent website with any further information you may want. You may be advised of the CPCAB book that is recommended for the Level 2, but is not needed for this course.
